

Room of the Fresco

This is the first room of the suite, or series of rooms, where Fausto lived. It's called the Room of the Fresco.

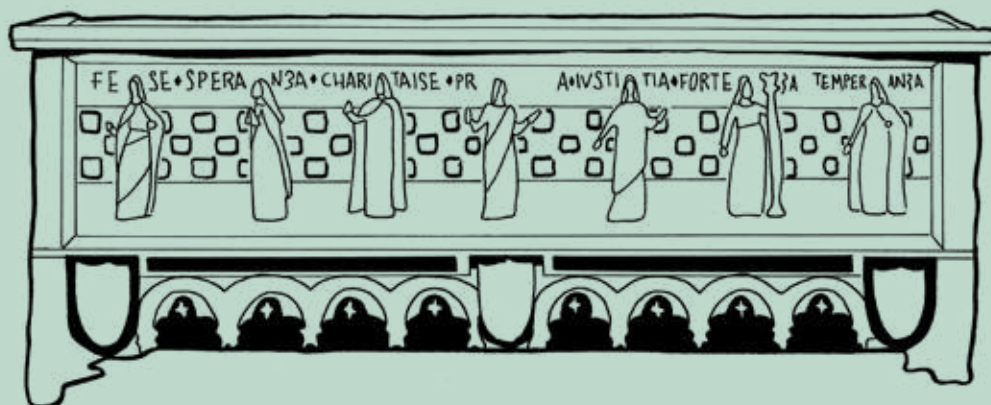

Look carefully. Can you see the painting done directly on the wall? Well, that's a fresco.

The other one, the one on the wall on your right, is a painting done on a panel of wood. Can you see how different the colors are?

TURN
OVER >>

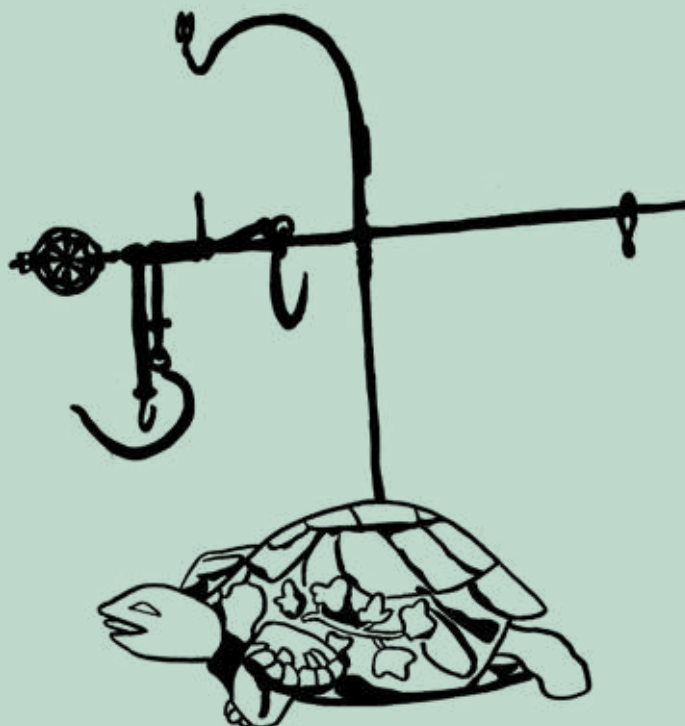

What do you see under the fresco?

This piece of furniture is called a “cassone,” a kind of chest for storing things and linens, because a long time ago there weren’t any closets.

In this room, there is a turtle; did you find it?

Can you tell me what the thing with the turtle is?

Answer: It's a balance for weighing things.